Well, hello and welcome to page forty-three. In many books, page forty-three is a sad anti-climax after the exciting events describes on pages forty-two and forty-four. We hope to avoid this pitfall by making our page forty-three into one of the most exciting and action-packed page forty-threes that you've ever read. In a lot of books, page forty-three contains purely descriptive matter, and in others it is still only part of the introduction, but not so this one . . . We say: get o move on, novelists. and let's have more page forty-threes like this one:

School's Out

By Alice Cooper

Well, we've got no choice
All the girls and boys
Making all that noise
Cause they've found new toys.

Well we can't salute ya
Can't find the flag
If that don't suit ya, that's a drag.

School's out for summer
School's out for ever
School's been blown to pieces.

No more pencils
No more books
No more teachers dirty looks.

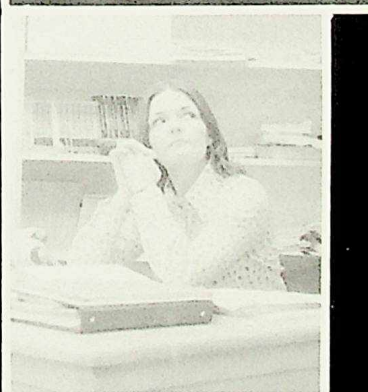

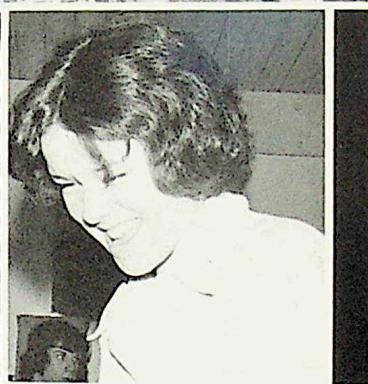

Well we've got no class
And we've got no principles
And we've got no innocence
We can't even think of a word that rhymes.

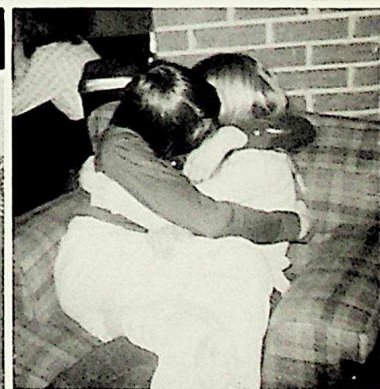

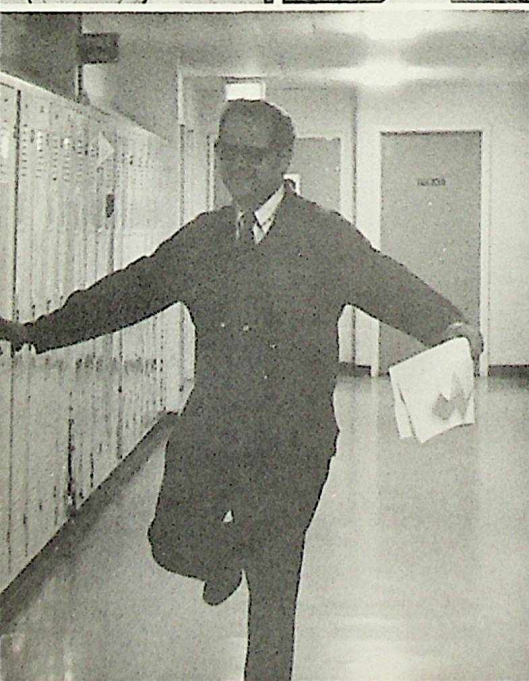

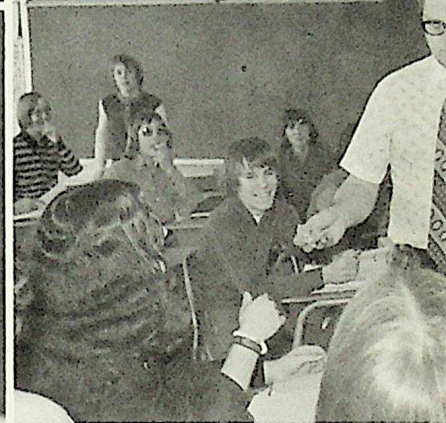

School's out for summer
School's out for ever
School's been blown to pieces.

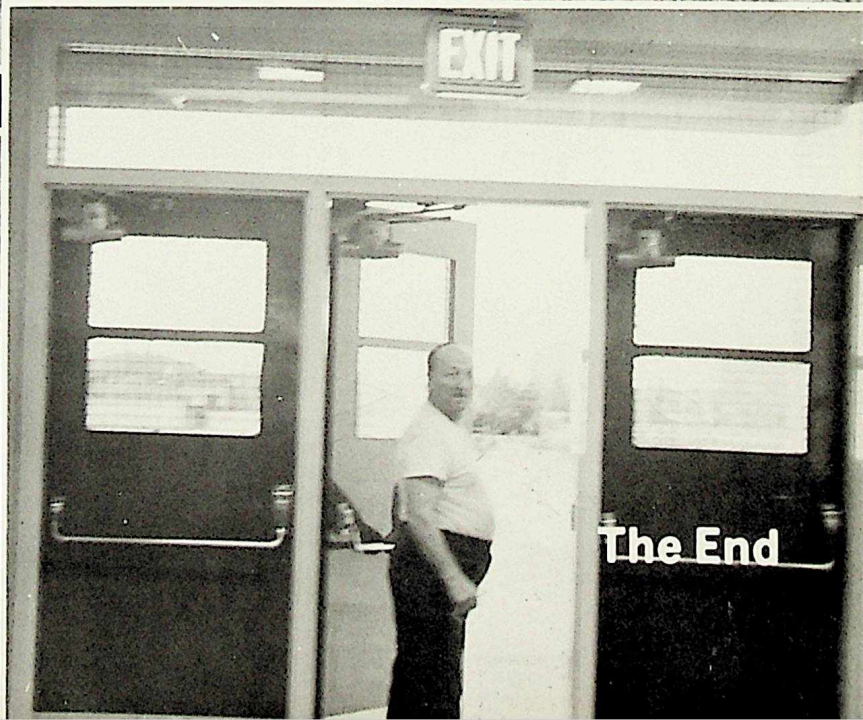

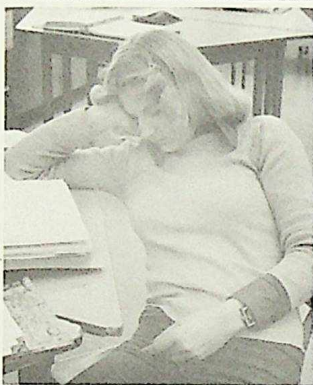

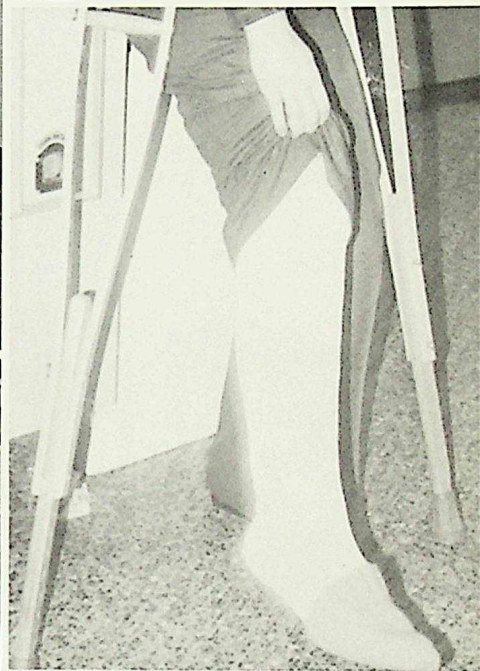

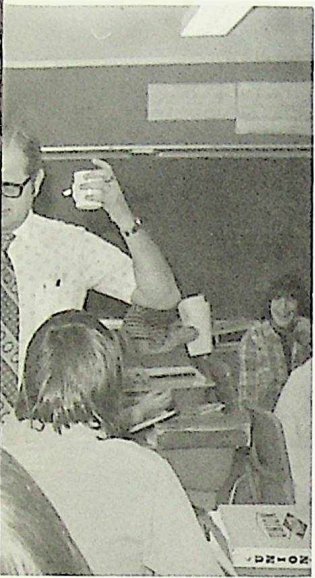

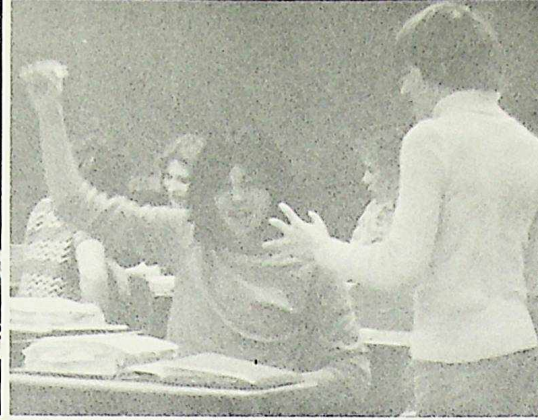

No more pencils
No more books
No more teachers dirty looks.

Out for summer
Out for fall
We might not go back at all.

School's out for ever
School's out for summer
School's out with fever
School's out completely.
